For suggesting the name of this publication, we are indebted to CLEONE PATTERSON, preoptical Junior. We feel that the choice, made by vote of the student body, fittingly symbolizes the progressive spirit of our college.

Prepositive

This is a casual glance at a year of our lives. It is more than that. It is an attempt to record a little of the effort and enjoyment, the aspiration and the laughter of a group of eager youth, who, consecrated to an ideal, are training for a life with a purpose.

OUTLOOK

Life holds no menace for the brave;
Life brings no terrors to the strong;
There is no anguish at the grave
For him who thinks both deep and long.

Watching life with cool, clear eyes
Brings comprehension wide of man,
And soothing last departing cries,
Reveals a surer higher plan.

For in it all there is the force
Of time's unchangeability;
And courage comes from the same source
As that which planned eternity.

LA SIERRA COLLEGE

Seventeen years ago a small group of men, inspired by the needs of the youth of Southern California, looked at a dried-up landscape of sand and sagebrush and saw a vision. Within a few weeks these men, with the courage of their ideal, had started to build their dream into a reality. The first buildings of La Sierra Academy fairly sprouted from the ground overnight. The institution, which was later called La Sierra Academy and Normal, eventually grew into Southern California Junior College. As this goes to press it becomes La Sierra College. Cool, shady campus has replaced the sagebrush, and the most modern methods and equipment have replaced those of another day.

In training Seventh-day Adventist youth for their places in a great forward movement, the faculty realizes its profound responsibility and accepts the challenge this responsibility presents.

La Sierra College is known as the College of the Friendly Spirit. The new student, encouraged by the general good-fellowship, has opportunity to cultivate personality and leadership in the activities of the Associated Student Body organization, and in a variety of other clubs and societies.

To be a member of the student body of La Sierra College is a privilege. The College opens its doors to all who are looking for a better way in life. Will you be with us in September, 1939?

GOING UP

While many institutions of learning closed, borrowed, amalgamated or leaned on subsidies and philanthropists for existence during the past decade, Southern California Junior College raced forward with such phenomenal growth that even its founders marvel at its evolution from a two-building academy with ninety-four students in 1922, to the present plant of over 400 acres, a score of buildings, and 520 students.

Fully accredited by the American Medical Association and the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools, it offers preparatory courses for medicine, dentistry, nursing, X-ray, law, and the ministry. Complete courses are conducted in music, agriculture, and normal, besides many vocational lines. By a combination of study and practical work students are able to defray part of their school expenses, gaining a valuable practical background at the same time.

The opportunity for attending this College is valued as a precious estate by the prudent, far-seeing student who, studying under the instructors and leaders responsible for this magnificent growth, finds himself in an atmosphere where the fundamental requisites of success are imbued and assimilated.

Stress is laid on a three-point education. Physical development is sponsored in the sporting activities, of which the centers are the College Hall, covering over half an acre, the swimming pool, the tennis, volleyball, and basketball courts. Skating, horseback riding, hiking, and field trips give opportunity for enjoyable physical exercise.

Efficient teachers, modern methods, amply equipped laboratories, and high standards minister to our scholastic needs.

Above all, the strong spiritual life, the basis of all true education, is fostered. Endowed with true Christianity and a high principle of service, students can face the world of business, of industry, of professional life unafraid. They can accomplish the impossible.

THE METEOR is another new step in the progress of the College. The product of inexperience, it is the germ of another project to be continued through the years to come. This first edition records the life of our Southern California Junior College in 1938-39. To the book and the College we invite your attention and approval. To the new La Sierra College of higher learning we extend our fervent hope for continued success, for even greater things in the future.

ADMINISTRATIVE

MINNIE BELLE SCOTT, A. B., Registrar of the College, was among the first of our acquaintances at S. C. J. C., when, on that first day, we came timidly, hopefully, to place our names on the dotted line. A graduate of Pacific Union College, class of '21, she had been at the College since 1927.

Those of us who entered the school homes came under the care of one of the two deans, VELMA M. WALLACE, A. B., of Pacific Union College, '28, and College of the Pacific, '31, whose careful concern for her flock of 150 girls rivalled that of the fondest parent, or . . .

WALTER T. CRANDALL, A. B., graduate of Washington Missionary College, '30, respected for his tact in handling the strange melting pot of types which is a school home, and for the quality and delivery of his daily worship talks.

BIBLE AND EVANGELISM

R. ALLAN ANDERSON, popular professor of Bible and Evangelism, early won our confidence by the power of his addresses and the friendliness of his personality. A student at Australasian Missionary College, '18; Jones' College, Melbourne, '18-'19, and the University of Experience, Professor Anderson had seen service on three continents, including a variety of foreign countries.

The cheery smile of C. M. SORENSON, M. A., will never die from the memory of those fortunate enough to have been in any of his Bible classes. A graduate of Washington Missionary College, '17, and George Washington University, '19, he had occupied a chair in Bible subjects at S. C. J. C. since 1932.

Probably better known as assistant manager of the Collegiate Press, W. E. GUTHRIE, B. A., had been associated with the College for two years. A graduate of Pacific Union College, '37, he instructed in Bible history, and was one of the well-liked sponsors of the Junior Class.

THE

One of the busiest men on the campus, LOUIS C. PALMER, M. S., was a graduate of Union College, '17, and the University of Southern California, '35. To the lucidity of his lectures most of us who were hopeful of medical careers could be thankful for a greater comprehension of things chemical.

To men like Professor Palmer and . . .

LESTER H. CUSHMAN, M.S., of Pacific Union College, '30, and the University of Southern California, '32, S. C. J. C. owed, to a large extent, its enviable position as a premedical and scientific institute. Professor Cushman was in the first class ever graduated from S. C. J. C., back in the days when it was a half-built academy. He had instructed here in biology, physics, and maths since 1930. A regular fellow, he entered into the activities of the year with the zest of a freshman.

MAXINE ATTEBERRY, B.S., R.N., a graduate of White Memorial, '33, and Pacific Union College, '39, was the energetic leader in the prenursing department. Her occasional peppy talks aroused a certain amount of health- and exercise-consciousness in even the most phlegmatic of us.

SCIENCES

PAULINE HEMPHILL-CUSHMAN, A.B., had been associated with S. C. J. C. since 1931. A graduate of Pacific Union College, '31, this versatile little lady taught several academy sciences and maths. Both she and her husband won our friendship for their informality and love of good fun.

Instructor in college zoology and academy maths, GEORGE A. THOMPSON, A.B., was graduated from Pacific Union College in '36. This was his first year at S. C. J. C. and his scientific, thorough methods of presenting the complexities of embryology produced results with many of us premedical aspirants.

COMMERCE AND ECONOMICS

K. F. AMBS, M. B. A., besides instructing in business management, was also financial manager of the College. On the occasions when finances became a major worry it was a pleasure to talk things over with such an understanding gentleman. A graduate of Emmanuel Missionary College, '28, and Northwestern University, '36, Professor Ambs had taken care of the college business since 1936.

Those of us whose vocational inclination was toward the world of commerce were grateful for the frank, forthright instruction methods of CAROLINE S. HOPKINS, B. A., whose picture also appears on the dedication page. She had been with the College since 1928, and was an ex-student of the University of Minnesota, '33, American Business College, Minnesota, University of Nebraska, and the University of Southern California, '37.

Assistant Business Manager ROBERT W. BICKETT, A. B., of Emmanuel Missionary College, '24, had been with the College since 1937. Most of us will remember his readings in dialect and character.

EDUCATION AND ART

As professor of elementary education and psychology, MAYBEL JENSEN, M.A., was charged with a large share of the great responsibility of training the growing body of youth who in turn will be influencing the junior members of our citizenry. Those of us who had opportunity to study under her tutelage were genuinely appreciative of the good humor and the quiet charm of manner which characterized all her association with the students.

The art department was under the competent supervision of DELPHA S. MILLER, whose experience in that field includes work at the San Francisco Institute of Art, and the University of California at Los Angeles, besides study with many of the leading artists of the West Coast. Many of us whose appreciation for the esthetic has been whetted by a closer contact with the palette this year, will recall with a great deal of pleasure the pleasant informal classes under her guidance.

We had scarcely come to know DORIS H. CARLSEN A.B., before she left the campus temporarily at the end of the first semester. She was, however, due to return for the beginning of the 1939-40 school year. Instructor in arts and crafts, she studied at Pacific Union College, '29, and Fresno State College, '36. We shall be glad to welcome her back to the campus.

With quiet manner and soft modulated voice OLIVE SEVERS-PALMER, A.B., college librarian, ministered to our reading requirements during the past school year. An alumna of Union College, '14 and the University of Southern California, '36, Mrs. Palmer joined the faculty of S. C. J. C. in 1936.

HISTORY AND MODERN LANGUAGES

Dean of the College K. J. REYNOLDS, M. A., had been with S. C. J. C. since 1926. Professor of history and political science, he was a graduate of Pacific Union College, '19, and the University of Southern California, '32. We soon discovered that when it came to problems of how to win grades and influence professors he had all the answers.

In the realm of foreign languages we met two pleasant, interesting ladies, MARGARETE AMBS, B. A., a graduate of Emmanuel Missionary College, '35, who taught German during this, her first year with us, and . . .

CLARA CRAIG, B. A., also of Emmanuel Missionary College, class of '28, who instructed in Spanish, and who had been at this College five years.

ENGLISH

Returning to our native tongue, we found J. P. FENTZLING, M. A., of Pacific Union College, '20, College of the Pacific, '32, University of Southern California, '35, and Stanford University, '36, a man enthusiastically absorbed in his work. Under his guidance we made excursions through the synopsis of the verb, the mechanics of the research paper, and the construction of the informal essay. If we have survived without gaining a greater appreciation for the literary arts, the blame must be laid at the door of mother nature.

FEDALMA RAGON, A. B., an alumna of Pacific Union College, '19, a friendly, considerate instructor in academy English, specialized in the fundamentals of grammar, imparting to us something of her own flawless knowledge of the subject.

MUSIC

Whether for credit or diversion, most of us found time to cultivate at least a modicum of musical appreciation and technique. HARLYN ABEL, B. M., instructor of voice, besides training the A Cappella Choir and the two Glee Clubs, interested many of us in doing something a little more easy on the ear. A graduate of the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago, '31, Professor Abel had studied under Doctor Lippe, Metropolitan Coach, and had been with S. C. J. C. since 1932.

Not only did we appreciate the good humor of the lightning-fingered ELLSWORTH WHITNEY, but the quality of his musical technique was sensed by all on the occasions when he was heard in action. An alumnus of Pacific Union College and Fresno State College, this was his third year at S. C. J. C.

Cosmopolitan OTTO RACKER, L. R. A. M., joined the faculty of the College after having taught for several years both in London and at Newbold College, England. A graduate of the Royal Academy of Music, London, this was his first year at S. C. J. C.

APPLIED ARTS

Besides instructing in home economics, GENEVA KERN-SKINNER, M. A., of Union College, '28 and the University of Maryland, '35-'37, was matron and caterer to the students of the College. If an army marches on its stomach, it is highly probable that a student body also studies on it. That many of us have put on adipose tissue, despite the strain of a college year, is sufficient comment on the work of the catering department.

In the practical sphere, popular J. W. CRAIG, A. B., instructed us in the art of hammer and saw. A student of Emmanuel Missionary College, '23, and the University of Indiana, '32, his versatility took him into many branches of pedagogy before his coming to S. C. J. C. in 1934.

WALTER G. LAWSON, A. B., instructor in printing, was also manager of the Collegiate Press. An alumnus of Walla Walla College, '20, Columbia University, '35, and the University of California at Los Angeles, '36, he merits the particular gratitude of the editors of THE METEOR for his assistance with their problems.

TRAINING SCHOOL SUPERVISION

DAISY DARROW-STURGES, Ped.B., a graduate of Carnegie College, '23, was particularly noted for her geographical knowledge. She literally had the world at her finger tips.

This was the first year of association with S. C. J. C. for quiet, unobtrusive ESTHER S. HEIM, B.A., whose work consisted somewhat in steering nervous student teachers through the understanding of child psychology. She was a graduate of Central State Teachers' College, Oklahoma, '28.

It was also the first year MARY WITCHEY-GROOME was with us. An alumna of Union College, Nebraska, she also instructed in the practical aspects of elementary education.

RURAL ARTS AND SCIENCES

Thoroughly absorbed in his subject, SIDNEY A. SMITH, B.S., was superintendent of agriculture. A graduate of Emmanuel Missionary College, '22, his sheer enthusiasm attracted to his classes many whose previous interests and ultimate ambitions were centered far from the rural scene.

GEORGE E. STEARNS, farm manager, had been with the College in continuous service longer than any other faculty member. Born in Minnesota, he came to California in 1903, and to S. C. J. C. in 1925. At the farm his cheery laugh was as much a part of the place as the silo.

BREAKERS AT BALBOA

SOLITUDE

The waves crashed in and they sneaked back out
As they dashed white foam with a mighty shout
And threw small fishes and kelp about
In the beautiful blue-green water.

And my little dog, playing there by the sea,
Saw a wiggly crab in a pile of debris
And dashed, with a roguish look at me,
Into the blue-green water.

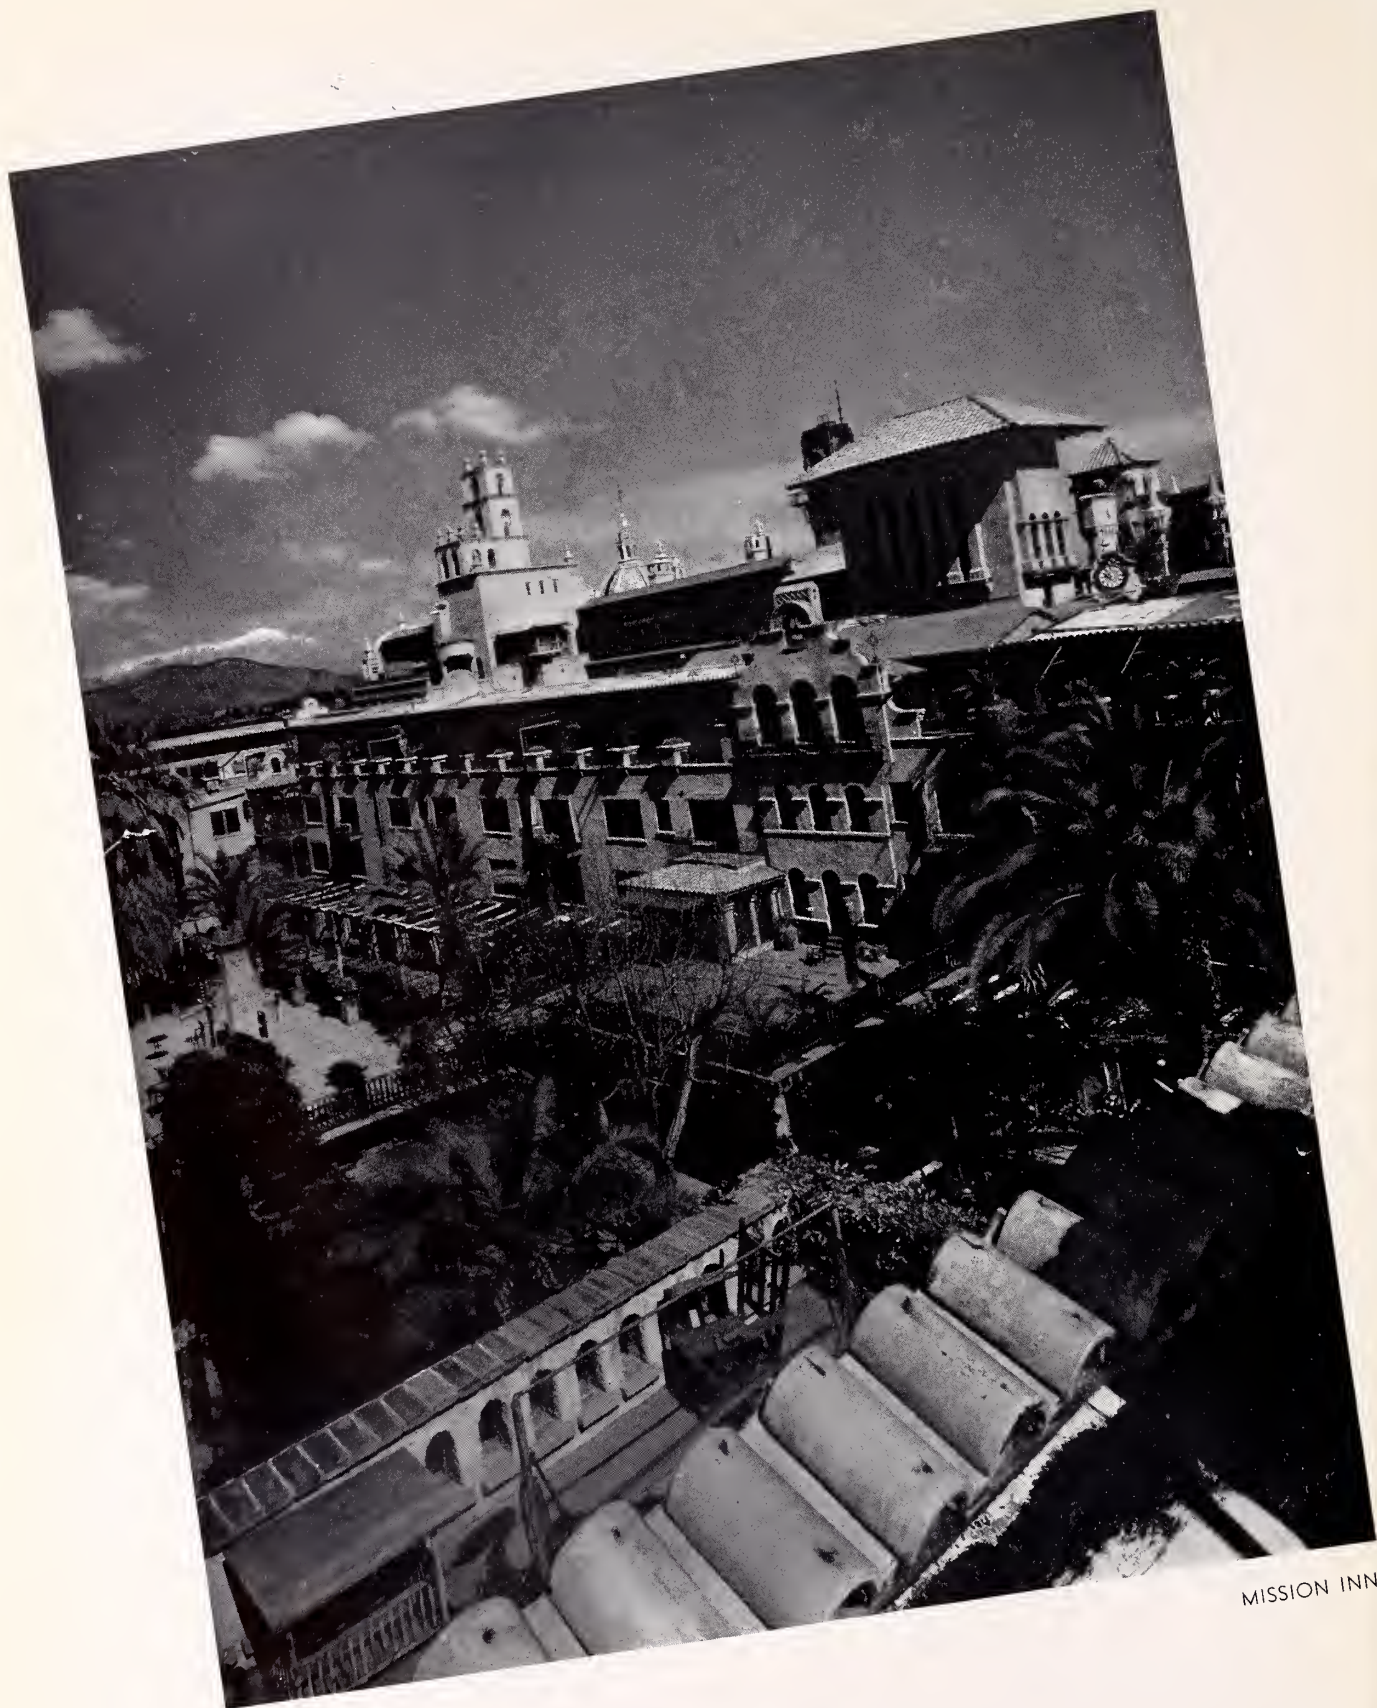

A wave came in with a mighty roar,
Larger than all that had come before,
And going back, took my dog from the shore
Into the blue-green water.

Now, alone, I go down to the sea
With nothing but clouds for company
To hear the sad moan that comes back to me
From the far-off blue-green water.

And the waves crash in, and they sneak back out,
And they dash white foam with a mighty shout,
Interminable, endless, churning about
That beautiful blue-green water.

To at least half the student body the school homes were the center of the year's activity and life. All five of the homes were filled to capacity despite the completion, early in the fall, of Calkin's Hall, the new men's residence. These latest living quarters were spacious and comfortable.

Home life at school included, of course, many phases, and necessitated considerable organization. For example, the most popular activity on the campus, eating, occurred on an average three times a day. Incidentally, there seems to be something wrong with our cafeteria picture, but we can't figure out just what it is.

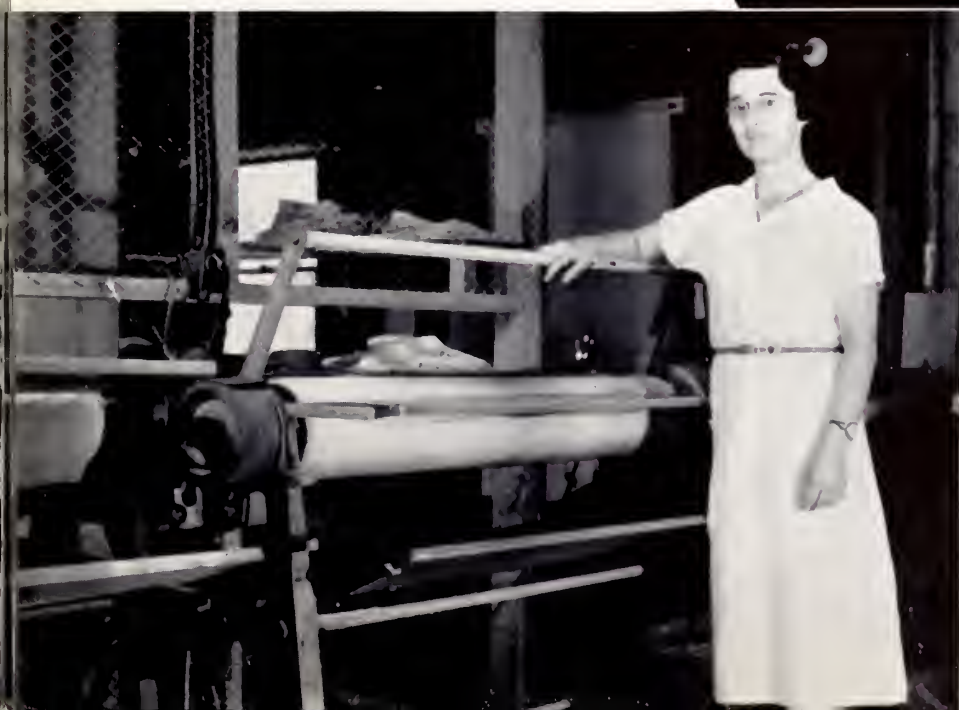

Of the services connected directly with the homes at least two more should be mentioned. The repair shop, under the directorship of Volney Dortch, kept things working smoothly, while the laundry, supervised by Mrs. Sheldon, kept both our shirts looking just like they did back home.

AND SO WE WORK

There is a fallacy existing in certain circles that the college-educated man is of necessity a sort of being apart, a cut above the common herd, the cream on the cake, so to speak. In the minds of many, success in life is the natural corollary of a college education. Unfortunately this idea is entrenched nowhere so firmly as in the ranks of college men themselves. That the mere absorption of knowledge ushers in the more abundant life is far from the truth. It is possible to expose oneself for years to an atmosphere of mental stimulus and to build up a complete immunity to its influence. It is even possible, strange as it may seem, to be an honor student and still know nothing about practical, constructive thinking. We are all familiar with the pitiful plight of the intellectual sponge who, after soaking up knowledge in prodigious quantities, is powerless even to dispense what he has without the assistance of constant external pressure.

More valuable than the accumulation of knowledge is the ability to use what one has. The mechanic who mends the choke on your car is of more immediate value to the world in general than the genius in the burning apartment house who, absorbed in mathematical abstractions, has forgotten the way to the fire escape. We are told that the world is looking for "brainy" men, for honest men, for clever men, for trained men. The world is looking for nobody. There is not a man alive the world cannot do without, and the world has a way of showing it. The only men it even notices are those who figuratively poke it in the ribs and say, "Look, this is me, see?"

It is primarily to make students practical, to acquaint them early with the ways of a practical, hard-boiled world that this College maintains its work-study system. Almost the entire work connected with the operation of the College and its associated industries is performed by the students. Everyone, whatever his financial or social status, is encouraged to do some work in the labor departments. Not only does this give the student needed experience; it tends to break down unhealthy social gradations; it removes the stigma which for some obscure reason tends to become associated with manual labor in the mind of the collegiate; it enables many who would otherwise never see the inside of a college to gain a sound education; it equips the student with an academic training and a trade, or at least an ability to use his hands efficiently.

The money paid to students for labor during the past year, '38-'39, amounted to $60,000. We wish success to such a program. May the College continue to furnish to the youth of Southern California the three fundamentals of a well-rounded education—spiritual adjustment, mental balance, and practical ability.

LOMA LINDA FOOD COMPANY

One of the most conspicuous structures in what might be termed the college community, the new plant of the Loma Linda Food Company, is modernistic in exterior design, clean and elaborately equipped within. Employing over forty of the students of the College, the company operated this year under the general management of G. T. Chapman. A. A. Sprengel supervised manufacture, and L. V. Roberson was treasurer. Intensive sales campaigns by road, press, and radio kept the wheels humming busily. The best selling product, Ruskets, a type of cereal already famous on three continents, is quickly coming into popular acclaim.

FOOD COMPANY EXECUTIVES A. A. SPRENGEL, G. T. CHAPMAN, AND L. V. ROBERSON

PRESS

Newly remodeled, the Collegiate Press added new equipment which greatly improved the quality and variety of the work. A new automatic press, a linotype with the latest in type faces, and new display types were among the recent additions to this busy printing plant. The volume of business handled by the Press this year was four times what it had been three years previously. Recently the Press has been doing some of the finest type of color work, much of which has been utilized in the making of over a million handbill advertisements for evangelistic meetings. As with every other school department, the Collegiate Press was always whole-heartedly behind any positive evangelistic program.

THE WOODSHOP

The Woodwork Shop gave continuous employment to seven students this year. Three salesmen on the road maintained business at a steady level. The main products of the plant, patented folding chairs and ironing boards, were sold chiefly in the vicinity of Los Angeles and Glendale.

COLLEGE STORE

The Store, owned and operated by the College, supplied most of the commodity requirements of the student body and the community. Carrying a comprehensive stock, it was maintaining a growing business.

THE RANCHO

The farm is intended not merely to provide work for the students, but also to act as a laboratory where those studying agriculture may gain practical experience. Emphasis is placed upon crop rotation, animal husbandry, and farm management as specialized branches of the farming profession.

The dairy, comprising 150 head of cattle, operating its own pasteurizing plant and ice cream freezer, supplied the College and the White Memorial Hospital in Los Angeles with milk and cream.

A fine group of Percheron mares took care of much of the heavy work in the fields. Several good saddle horses were available to equestrian enthusiasts. By the introduction of Arab stock the type and style of the saddle horses was gradually undergoing improvement.

GARDENING CLASS

There are always some who are fascinated by watching the growth of plants. This year the size of Professor Smith's gardening classes broke all records. Altogether over seventy students were interested either as members of the classes or as full- or part-time workers in the upkeep of the campus grounds. Many studied gardening for the sheer love of growing things, while others found the information a help in the progress toward their chosen careers.

LABORATORY

We analyze the dust and mist
Of untold sunset skies,
And query after consequence,
The stardust summarize.

Our interest grows in black coal-tar
(And dies to vernal days);
We rearrange the molecules
And God we paraphrase.

We would define an ecstasy
With words so staid and trite
That they would fall, intact, to lie
In intellectual night.

Obsession for the unknown fact
Possesses every thought and mood.
Enveloped in a realm abstruse
We dwell apart from air and food.

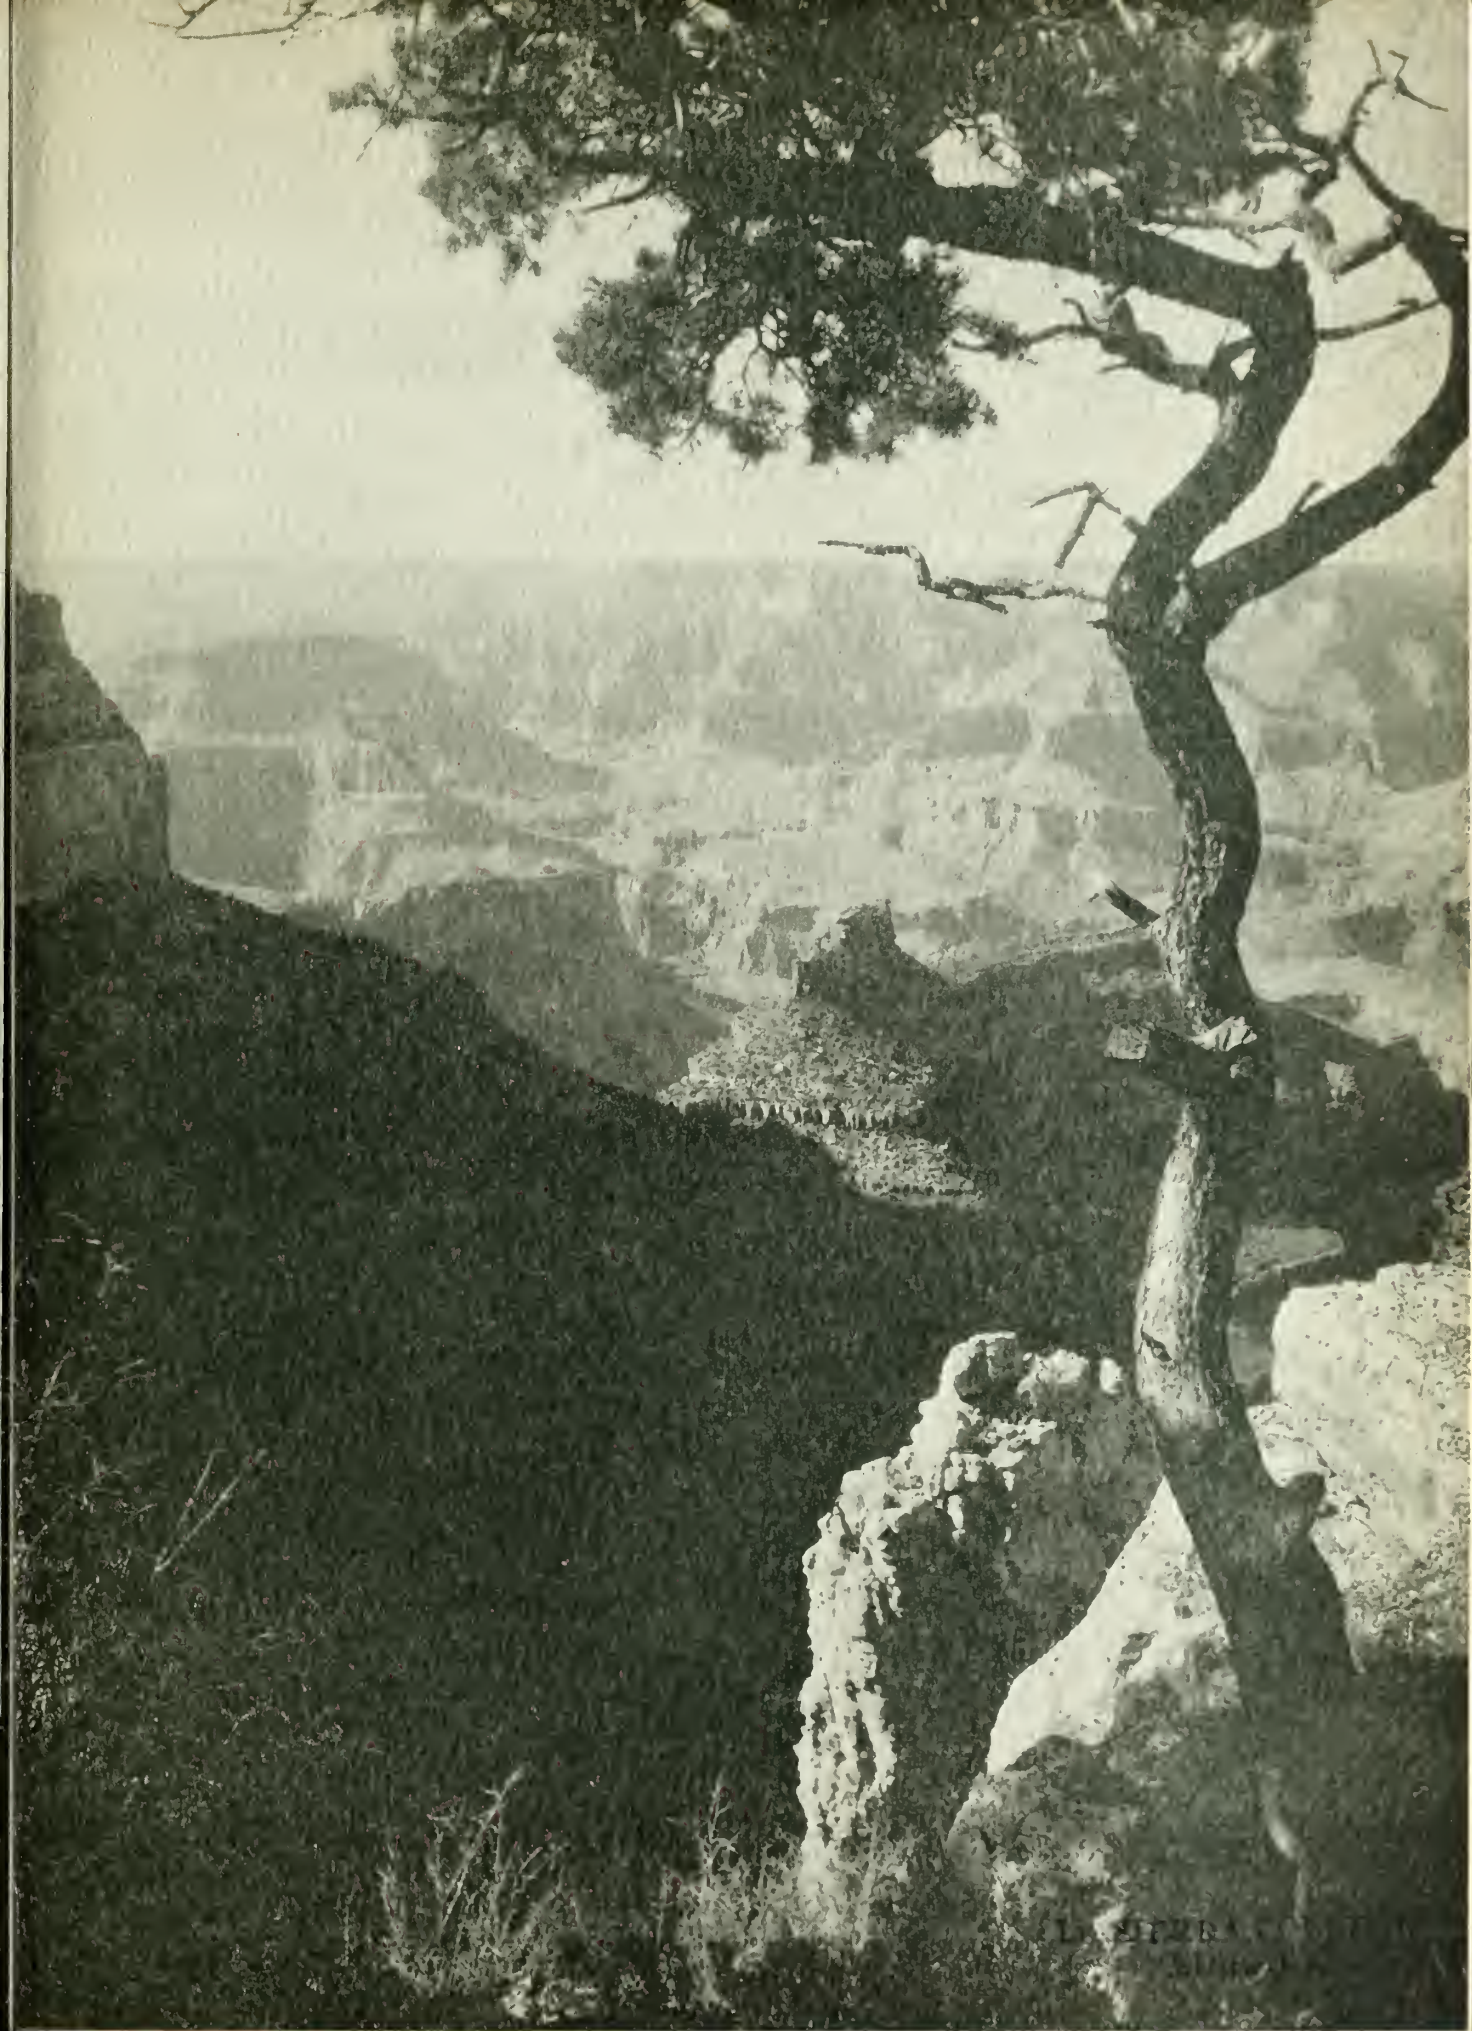

And then, if interrupted once
From refuge of our bottles dense,
We raise our heads with far-off eyes,
As one who pays a penitence.

THE ASSOCIATED STUDENT BODY

Officers: Denver Reed (Assistant Business Manager), Mr. George Thompson (Adviser), Ira Follett (Business Manager), Wesley Kizzlar (First Vice-president), James Paullin (Editor "Criterion"), Lillian Johnson (Secretary), Miss Maxine Atteberry (Adviser), Herbert Greer (President), Veretta Gibson (Second Vice-president), Nadine Scott (Assistant Secretary)

Under the competent leadership of Herbert Greer, the Associated Student Body organization got under way early in the year with a successful field day for the Harvest Ingathering Campaign. This was the first of four major campaigns launched and carried to success during the school year. The "Criterion" Campaign of October brought in over 2,000 subscriptions for the school paper. In March the lightning METEOR Campaign was followed immediately by that for the new Estey organ.

Besides campaigning, the A. S. B. provided us with many entertaining programs and outings. After an exceedingly strenuous year the retiring officers receive our sincere thanks for the energetic service rendered to the student body.

PREMED

From a small start in 1932 the premedical course at Southern California Junior College has been growing by leaps and bounds. The first graduates left their Alma Mater in 1934 and five years later look back on what Professor Palmer believes to be one of the largest classes in organic chemistry that junior colleges of the West Coast have ever seen.

The close proximity of a medical school keeps the science standards up to a high level, and in laboratory the instructors are striving to give practical work which will be of immediate help in higher fields, and will also give each student a foretaste of medical school requirements.

Of the twenty-four or so students graduating from the premedical course in 1939, several are to start their careers as medical doctors at the Loma Linda branch of the College of Medical Evangelists this September.

PRENURSE

The natural counterpart to the premedical department, the prenursing course at Southern California Junior College has caught the spirit of progress. From its beginning under Miss Anna Paulson, the course has been continually improved as to laboratory and class equipment. With Miss Atteberry in charge, the prenursing students are preparing themselves for service in a progressive, businesslike way. Students graduating from the course this year will train at Loma Linda, Paradise Valley, Glendale, Boulder, Portland, and White Memorial.

THE SCIENCE CLUB

The fifty-four members in good standing who witnessed the annual ceremony of unlocking a glass-doored case in the entrance of San Fernando Hall, which guards the Science Club Album, comprise the largest membership that the Science Club of Southern California Junior College has ever known.

Taken from the upper grade ranks of the College, these members were representative young people, with an academy diploma, majoring in college science. A grade point average of 1.7 was the minimum requirement for invitation to join the club.

During the first semester the presiding officers were Richard Russell, president; Gordon Mooney, vice-president; and Louise Brines, secretary-treasurer. Officers elected to serve for the second semester were Raymond Ermshar, president; Jack Baker, vice-president; and Mildred Smith, secretary-treasurer.

The Douglas Aircraft plant in Santa Monica, the Arden Dairy in El Monte, and the Los Angeles County General Hospital from basement to sixteenth floor were the destinations of several all-day field trips. Lectures and demonstrations by eminent scientists, and films on various subjects pertaining to science were presented on club nights.

Oscar the horse, angle shots, and portrait studies were used as subjects for three contests. An equipment campaign for a Federal enlarger, a print washer, trays, and a ferrotype plate was conducted during the second semester.

ANTENNAE

A transmitting and receiving radio station, with three licensed operators who have heard and talked to nearly every amateur radio station in the United States and several outside, was on the campus this year. Professor Cushman, W6BJD, sponsor, Frederick Hoyt, W6QFG, president, and Paul Seaward, W6MHX, the third licensed operator, comprised half of a group of six members. The Radio Club used a Sky Challenger receiver and a 60-watt transmitter.

EVANGELISM

The department of evangelism is the dynamo of the College. It is to train young men and women to be God's ambassadors on earth that this College exists. Those who come to S. C. J. C. are offered a living philosophy, a warm message of hope, yet one that is founded in logical reason. Those who go from S. C. J. C. go to give that message to the world; to elevate the minds of their fellow men from morbid apprehension to certain knowledge; to proclaim a last message of hope to a doomed world. It is in this commission that we seek our future; to it we consecrate our lives, for it is the reason for our being.

MINISTERIAL SEMINAR

The Seminar is essentially the laboratory of the department of Bible and evangelism. Each week during the year, after the regular Friday evening service, it met under the sponsorship of Elder R. A. Anderson. Led by the ministerial students, regular evangelical or church services were conducted. Occasionally outdoor meetings were held, while at other times impromptu speeches being called for, the audience was expected to contribute. Active members of the Seminar were given opportunity to conduct public evangelistic work in many of the smaller towns of the vicinity.

M. V. SOCIETY

With meetings held twice a month on Friday evenings, the Missionary Volunteer Society was an active one. It operated seven bands whose work was to bring cheer to people of the surrounding communities. Each Sabbath afternoon the bands were to be seen climbing into automobiles or walking down the highway bent on their errands of mercy and cheer. One went to the Woodcraft Home for the Aged, another to conduct services in Norco; one went to sing to the sick of the village; another mailed literature. The Radio Band gave a weekly program of music to the patients of

FOREIGN MISSION BAND

A group who are definitely training to become missionaries met each Friday evening to formulate plans, to hear reports by returned missionaries, and to discuss the problems of mission work. Under the sponsorship of Elder C. M. Sorenson and the leadership of Rexford Parfitt and Walter Barber, the weekly programs attracted all who were interested in this great work.

ARTS AND LETTERS GUILD

Organized to promote interest and appreciation for the fine arts, the Arts and Letters Guild proved to be a most entertaining, educational, and informal club.

Although there were no regular times of meeting, a special program was usually planned once each month. During the past year lectures on different pertinent subjects, motion pictures, readings, and musical programs provided a wide variety of educational entertainment for the club members.

On April 20 the Guild visited Forest Lawn Memorial Park, Glendale, for their annual field trip. The same evening the club attended a concert at the Philharmonic Auditorium in Los Angeles, featuring Arthur Schnabel, pianist, with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra.

WRITERS' CLUB

An auxiliary branch of the Arts and Letters Guild, the Creative Writers' Club was organized for the benefit of those interested in literary material. The club was nothing if not informal both in the style and regularity of its meetings. Members were expected to give short speeches on the details of their literary histories and aspirations, besides reading samples of their work before the club. A program at Riverside Junior College, under the auspices of the Riverside Writers' Club, was attended by several of the members.

ARTS AND CRAFTS

For those desiring to cultivate interest and pursue work in the plastic arts, painting, and drawing, the Art Club was formed as another branch of the Arts and Letters Guild. A visit to the Huntington Art Galleries, Olvera Street, and the Los Angeles Museum in Exposition Park constituted the club's first all-day outing.

The tenth annual tour of the 40-voice A Cappella Choir under the directorship of Harlyn Abel, included appearances in many important cities in this vicinity — Alhambra, Hollywood, Glendale, Fullerton, Los Angeles—where they were enthusiastically received. The concert in the historic Mission Inn, Riverside, proved to be one of the highlights. The Westminster system of training was adopted here for the first time this year. Late in the school year the organization became an affiliated Westminster choir. The group appeared in the annual Spring Music Festival in Riverside, singing several of their better-known selections, "God Is a Spirit," "How Beautiful Upon the Mountains," and "Oh, What a Beautiful City."

PIZZICATO AND BRASS

The twenty-piece College Band was organized this year under the directorship of Professor Otto Racker. This group has been a definite asset in promoting school spirit during campaigns and programs. The black-and-white uniformed players gave their season's concert on April 15. Assisted by the Glee Clubs and special soloists, the band gave one of the finest programs of the year. The proceeds of the performance went to the Pipe Organ Campaign fund.

Practicing twice a week, the College Orchestra, also conducted by Professor Racker, made noticeable progress this year. The orchestra first made its appearance at the annual Christmas tree program. Their final concert was held Saturday evening, May 13, in Hole Memorial Auditorium. Assisting the orchestra were Edgar Doerschler, flute, and Margaret Blakeman, soprano.

M. B. K.

The purposes of Mu Beta Kappa are to lighten the routine of school home life and to promote lasting friendships among the men. Watermelon feeds, programs, and banquets all contributed to the conviviality this year and will be long remembered. Thursday evening was devoted to club meetings, catering strictly to the affairs of men. Visiting speakers and local talent programs maintained quality and variety at a maximum in the club programs. The Blues and Reds sporting teams kept the interest high in such sports as swimming, basketball, and skating.

First semester officers were Burl Frost, president; John Holm, vice-president; Gordon Mooney, secretary; Charles Nelson, treasurer; Bob McPherson, chaplain; and Bud Scott, sergeant at arms.

During the latter half of the year Findlay Russell was president with Jack Baker, vice-president; Moises Gonzalez, secretary; Bud Donaldson, treasurer; Wallace Hume, chaplain; and Armen Johnson, sergeant at arms.

THE GIRLS' FORUM

The center of social life in Gladwyn Hall was the Girls' Forum, a home club meeting each Thursday evening for a program of recreation and entertainment. In the pressure of school life, when nerves tend to become frayed, the opportunity for a friendly get-together is always a welcome break in the routine. Among the popular events of the year were hikes, treasure hunts, joint dinners with the men of M. B. K., entertainments and sports in College Hall, and indoor programs.

One delightful project of the Forum was known as "Friendship Friends." Each girl became the secret benefactor of some other girl in the Forum for six weeks, after which the identity of the former was cleverly unmasked and new names were drawn for the following period. Officers of the year included Elizabeth Sciarrillo, Olivia Socol, Lolita Ashbaugh, Marie Davidson, Alverta Hallsted, Beth Bauer, Carola Schwender, and Charlotte Scott.

Publication of the Associated Student Body

With Marjorie Robison as editor-in-chief, the first edition of the year left the press the week school began. October 10 saw the beginning of the campaign for subscriptions. With Denver Reed as campaign manager, enthusiasm was kept at a high pitch. Programs arranged by LaVerne Campbell and Violet Cole, leaders of the boys' and girls' sections respectively, stimulated the old school spirit. By the end of the month the campaign went over the top with 2,293 sales, the girls leading by a margin of 17. Taking office as editor-in-chief on November 9, James Paullin was responsible for the production of a really fine paper. An attractive picture supplement made its appearance in the edition of March 29, and in April the paper was awarded Second Class Honor Rating by the Associated Collegiate Press at the University of Minnesota.

OFF THE

Much of the sporting activity this year was under the auspices of the two home clubs, M. B. K. and the Forum. In the men's section lively competition between the Red and Blue teams stimulated interest in baseball, basketball, volleyball, tennis, and ping-pong.

Swimming was popular, the pool catering to those who prefer to take their exercise in this manner.

Hiking enthusiasts arranged trips to adjacent places of interest, including San Geronio, whose 12,000 feet of rock and timber offer a satisfying day's excursion.

Almost every Saturday evening College Hall was opened for skating, the most popular sport on the campus. In this expansive building were facilities for the enjoyment of almost every type of healthy recreational activity.

THE ORGAN

Probably the most memorable single event of the school year was the installation in Hole Memorial Auditorium of the great Estey Organ. Virtually a gift to the College, its presence on the campus was made possible by the interest of Messrs. Arthur Pearson, C. M. Giddings and Oliver Wallace.

The organ itself is of the unit orchestral type, carrying all the tones of a symphony orchestra as well as diapason tones of the church music type. Its accessories include thirty adjustable combination controls and complete inter-manual couples with unison separations. Percussions are by Deagon, and comprise a marimba harp of forty-nine bars and a set of chimes consisting of twenty tubes.

In the biggest campaign of the year $3500 was raised by the student body.

A FORMULA FOR FAILURE

To read the satisfaction on the faces of some students as they recount their triumphant misunderstandings with various college personalities, one might be led to suspect that failure to "get along" in college is really something of a major achievement. On the basis of personal observation I claim that it is not nearly so difficult as it sounds. In fact, there is nothing to it. By adherence to a few simple rules the problem of how to make your college career a program of progressive non-success reduces itself to something absurdly simple.

To be complete your failure must involve three aspects: uncompromising dislike by your fellow-students, perpetual friction with the faculty, and a sufficiently low grade-point average. With this threefold objective firmly in mind any intelligent student can, by a little diligent application, make a genuine fizzle of his educational life.

Let us consider your relations with the fellow students. When meeting students for the first time, what is known as the Cynical Approach is a tried and proved success. Open the initial conversation with a sharp crack about the College, or maybe the weather, or even the country if so be you are from another section of the land. This immediately arouses in the listener a respect for the keenness of your intellect. It opens the way for the next part of the conversation, which should be a long, detailed description of the school, the state, or the country from which you came, with emphasis on its advantages as contrasted with the uncongeniality of your new surroundings. In conversation remember that the other fellow is more interested in hearing you speak than you are in hearing him. Should he by some chance gain the floor, interrupt his speech with irrelevant observations, or at least stand nervously poised making it obvious that you have something of supreme importance to impart the moment he becomes silent. Punctuate your remarks with well-directed wisecracks; whatever his statement, always go one better. Seize every opportunity of exposing yourself to the limelight, remembering that you are, after all, the most talented, capable person in the school, even if somewhat misunderstood. Never let your listeners forget that your presence in their midst represents a supreme condescension on your part.

Make a habit of borrowing articles of clothing, money, and books,—in fact anything others may have which you at the moment need. Even if you don't need them, borrow them just the same. Remember, too, that it is the duty of the lender to call for his goods if he wants them back. After a period of consistent application of this rule you will be amazed at the number of people with whom you positively cannot get on.

From a superficial study of the situation one might suppose that the relation of the student to the instructor was sufficiently regulated to preclude the generation of the friction necessary to successful failure in college. There are, however, three distinct methods of approach which will engender a definite distaste for your personality among the members of the instructing staff.

The first method is known as the Broad-minded Attitude. It is the product of a basic assurance that the rules and requirements constituting college government are designed to affect the other fellow. This will lead to the assumption that after all you know considerably more than the whole faculty about most things. You will, therefore, take very little interest in anything the professor has to impart. You will maintain a steady conversation during lectures. You will be affable and free in all your relations with the instructors, jesting copiously, slapping their backs, and calling them by nicknames. You will dismiss with an understanding wink or an indulgent smile any general advice which may be construed to have a personal application to yourself.

The second method calls for a totally different technique. Its main object is to impress the professor with your interest in him and his subject. It should be carried to slight excess to produce results. In practice you occupy a front seat in the lecture room. Your whole attitude is one of intense, ready interest. You may even assist the professor with well-timed remarks relevant to the subject matter of his discourse. Should he, for instance, be discussing a problem in freshman physics, inform him that the latest experiments of Professor Albertstein have proved that the velocity of radio-active positrons in cosmic light is inversely proportional to the logarithm of the square of the perpendicular distance between their focal points and the axis of rotation. The other students, too, will appreciate the information you have to offer. At the close of every class go directly to the instructor's desk and engage him in conversation until the next class begins. He will greatly appreciate this, for there is every reason why he should be more interested in you than in all his other students combined.

The third method of approach is known as the Belligerent Front. Its essence is a conviction that the faculty is composed of public enemies numbers one, two, three, and so on. Such a belief tends to produce its own course of conduct and requires little further explication. While this method has been successful in many instances it is not strongly recommended, lacking, as it does, the finesse characteristic of the former two.

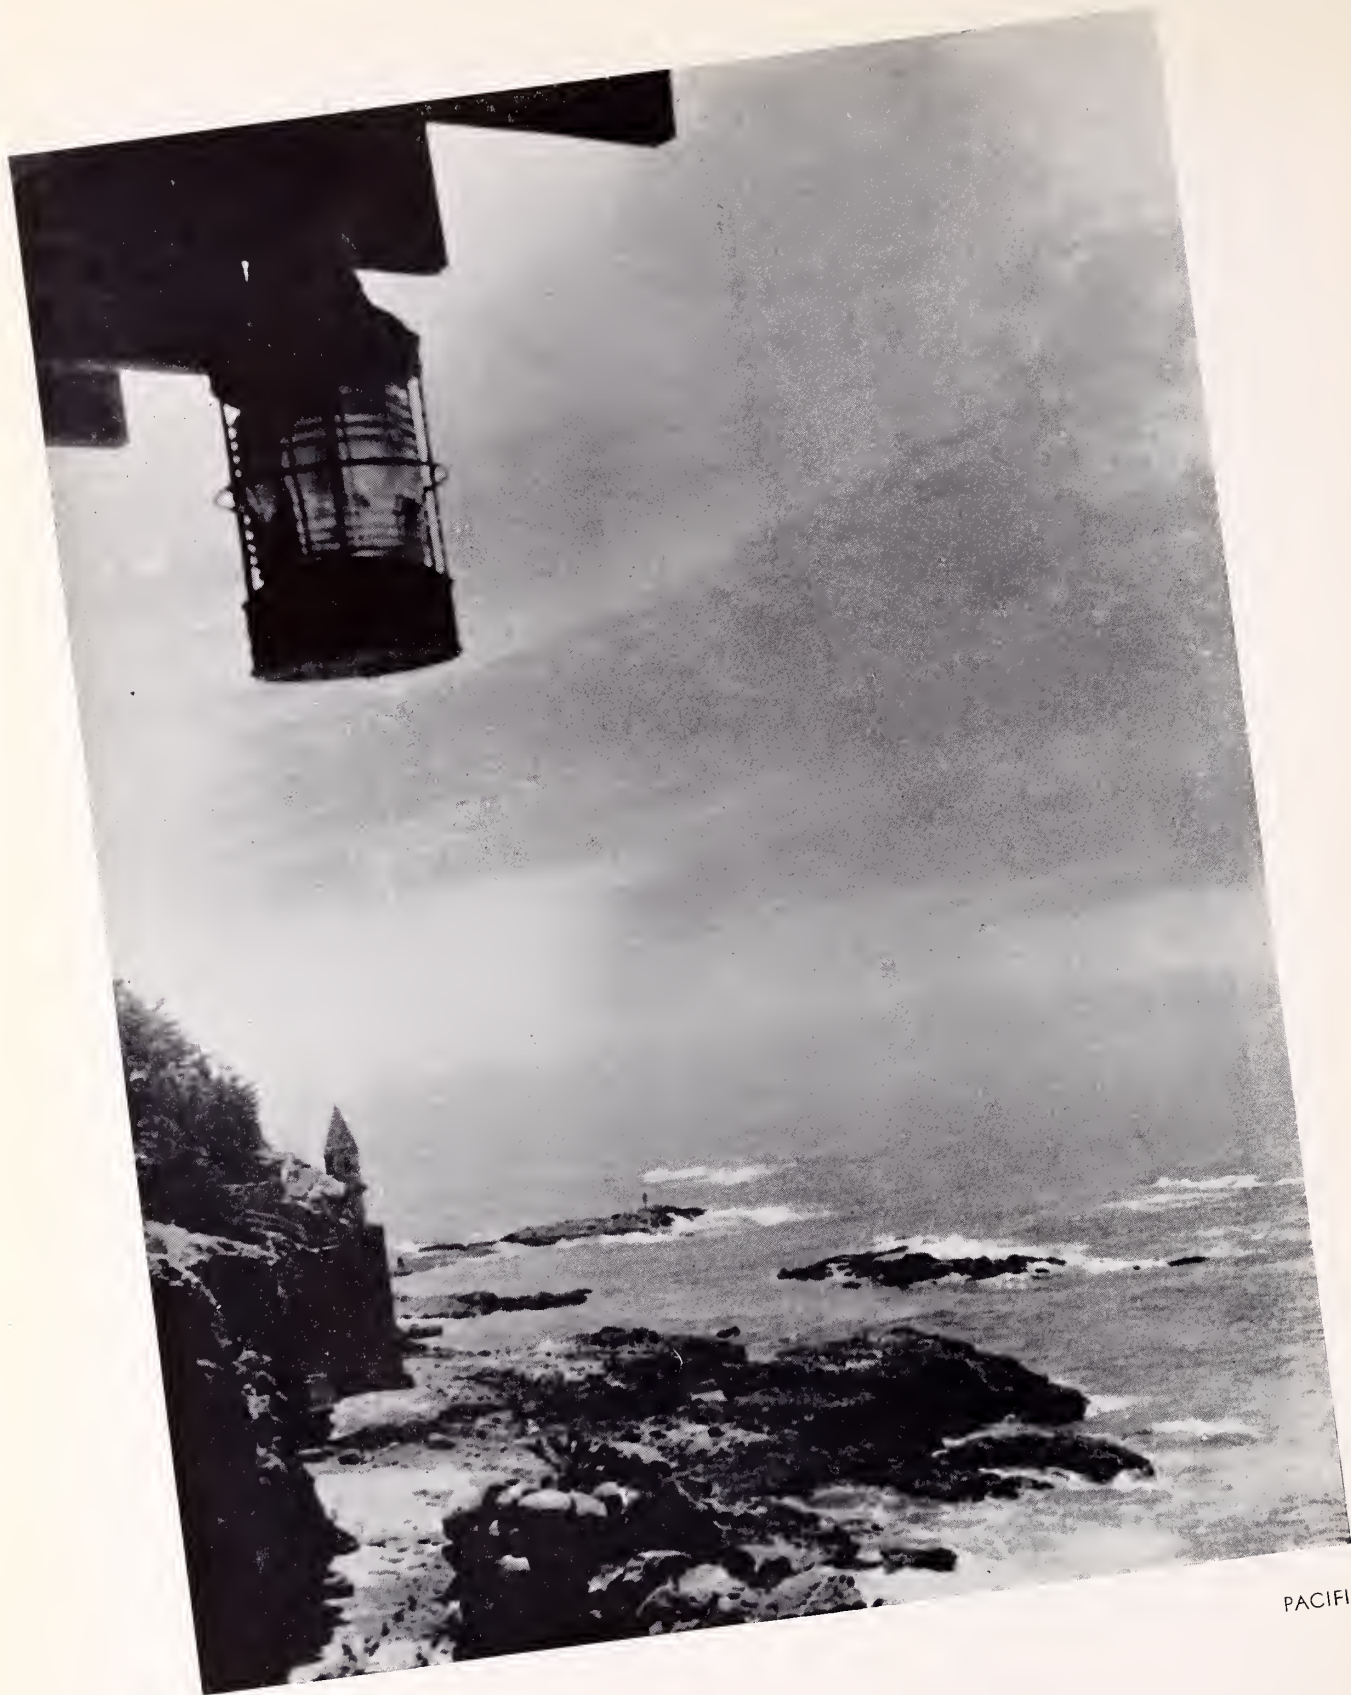

And finally there is the important matter of the scholastic grades. It may seem difficult for some to maintain these at a sufficiently low level, yet nothing could be more simple. In fact, the easiest and most effective way to insure failure in scholastic achievement is to do precisely nothing. But to some young people the temptation to do something, to engage the mind in some form of exercise, is a fundamental urge. Therefore, it is advisable to direct the interests into other channels. So, fall in love. Not wishing to go into the psychology involved, I shall merely state that there is no surer way to attain intellectual obscurity in college.

For those whose preference runs to other forms of mental outlet, most colleges provide ample facilities for the absorption of time and energy. Enter into some form of extra-curricular activity. By activity, of course, I mean real activity, not merely becoming a second vice-president of the goldfish eaters' club, but something like, shall we say, editor of a college annual. If any better way of lowering one's scholastic rating has been discovered it has not been disclosed to date.

While the foregoing few suggestions are not offered as a comprehensive treatise on the subject, they will, if consistently applied, bring most gratifying results to the enthusiastic seeker after failure. Conversely, by their rejection the prospect of success in college looms into the sphere of possibility.

QUO VADIS

The phobia of failure, of economic insecurity, of the future itself, has the man of the world in its grip. Where do we go from here? What may we expect tomorrow? These questions occupy every thinking mind. It would seem that in order to harmonize with the intricacies of life as it is lived today, one must forfeit one's inherent individualism. Confronted by such a perplexed world, what is a 1939 Senior to expect?

From the maelstrom of human behavior three ancient principles still seem to stand out conspicuously. The first is the necessity for toil. While everything does not come solely as the result of work, there is very little of real worth that comes without it. Success is usually the result of a series of hard-earned promotions, and the labor required to earn these promotions is, to a large extent, its own reward. The most lasting pleasure comes from constructive work, not from self-indulgence and indolence.

Yet we know that many work faithfully and never rise above the level of the millions around them. They do not understand the principle of service. Imbued with a desire to serve others and to be an asset to the world in general, one cannot remain in a rut.

The last principle is so comprehensive that it includes the other two, and so important that true success is impossible without it. It is that of a positive Christianity, a firm basis for thought and conduct. Our school has developed in us a respect for and a realization of the need of religion in our lives.

Believing, then, that a love of one's work is necessary to real happiness, that self-sacrificing service for others is ample protection against want, and that Christ-likeness is the foundation of true knowledge, we can face the future optimistically. As Seniors we have, or should have, the desire and the equipment to gain knowledge. And knowledge is the antidote for fear.

AT THE SENIOR PICNIC

Haven't we met somewhere before? . . . A truckload of fun . . . The Class President starts the ball rolling . . . Boy! What a whopper! . . . Look, here it comes . . . Dean Reynolds takes a work-out . . . "The little jockey on the carousel." The wheelers set out . . . That sounds like a good line, Marvin . . . Alverta, queen of caterers, is on the job again . . . Getting some English on it. . . . Time to go home, too bad.

Before you buy

A BREAKFAST FOOD

CHECK ITS VALUE with RUSKETS

✓ FLAVOR

Whole wheat flavored with malt, sugar, and salt. RUSKETS are first in taste and rapidly growing in popularity.

✓ FRESHNESS

RUSKETS are triple sealed to preserve freshness.

✓ CRISPNESS

RUSKETS flakes are molded into wafer-like biscuits and retain their crispness longer in milk or cream.

✓ FOOD VALUE

The carbohydrates, proteins, vitamins, mineral salts, and cellulose, in every flake, make RUSKETS a wise addition to your daily diet.

✓ PRICE

Although costing more than most cereals to produce, RUSKETS are sold at a very moderate price—lower per ounce than many other popular breakfast foods.

DUES

"Good wine needs no bush." If that was true in Shakespeare's time, it probably is now. To be safe, we shall give one to this publication. When we started out we thought we had some pretty good ideas. Now we are not so sure. But before closing we want to say a word of sincere appreciation to Avery and Gaylor Field for the portraits and scenic photography, particularly for the use of the copyrighted desert scene of which our end sheets are composed; to Mabel Cason for the cover design and the cartoon of the absent-minded medical grad. whom we have nicknamed "Oscar"; to you, Sam Babcock, of Molloy-Made Covers, for being a good pal and taking care of our cover and binding problems; and to you, Al Rogers and Marty Hitht of Metropolitan Engravers Ltd., for your hard work, your friendly advice, and your personal interest in our book, and for having some suggestion equal to every emergency.

To Mr. Lawson, Mr. Guthrie, and all the boys of the Collegiate Press we are indebted for a fine piece of work despite the great haste with which it had to be done.

We thank you, the purchasers of THE METEOR, for your support, and we feel that this book will have served its purpose if it recalls a few interesting memories to those of us who were here in '38-'39, and prompts those who were not here to wish they had been.
